THE STRIEM USED. Y PARIS

It is generally believed that the system, more a actual use in Paris, has solved the quest on of the speedy transmission of letters and parcels. But this system was first adjusted for the purpose of regularing the clocks of the city on the secundate bettern prescribt, to obtain a saliformaty of time all over Paris. A large number of capitalists become informated in the schome, the company extended its operations and the principal business of the company at present is the supplying of power to manufactories in different parts of the city. The power is transmitted from the works, which are situated just outside the city limits, in pipes through the city sewers. One of aroungs of the system is that there is no except of the system in that there is no except of their life. In fact, the mesage of air into the works.

it is employed, and it does not vititte the atmosphere in which the workman spend so much of their lives. In fact, the incape of air into the vicents is standard, as it helps is coul and woutliste, hem.

On the other hand, the fact that up to the present time it has been found impossible in device only means which would entirely chunte the continual leakage of air makes he commercial stility of the system combatful. It has been found that in transmitting our for mining purposes 50 percent at the power is list. Of course in transmitting the air to great distances through the remaindeatops of a very city the less of power by appassion is vestly through the resultestops of a vest city the less of power by appraison is vestly greater. It is possible that the percentage of was to allowed by the company in Paris would inghten American capitalists and make he adoption of the system herecom mercially impracticable. Indeed the system in Paris, although indered by generous capital, is still in an experimental stance.

The system has constantely proved that the scheme is quite practicable physically, although the inevitable waste of power is

Two Morals to One Story!

In a little village not a thousand miles from Hartford, and not a shousand wysers ago, a happy family sat down to dinner. They had bisno mange for dessert. The blanc mange, unfortunately, as it turns out, was put to cool employe before it was pieced on the table. Harriy revery one particolt heartily. Presently the heart of the dish, and delving salo it spoothed up a hopford. Each tend had jumped into the dish as it lay estatio, and the blanc mange being soft each bot, had such and ded.
